Carnival Queen list grows to 18

Eight new entries in the Cotton Carnival queen contest announced today bring the number of contestants to 18. The event will be held Saturday following the 29th annual Cotton Carnival parade.

Beth Bloomfield, 15, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Bloomfield of Essex Route One. She has hazel eyes. Geometry is the favorite class of this 5- foot 3- inch sophomore who is sponsored by Richland High School.

Rita Ann Bradshaw, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bradshaw of Sikeston Route Four, is a junior at Scott County Central High School. She is 5 feet 1 inch tall and has blue eyes and brown hair. Art is her favorite subject. She is sponsored by Scott County Central High School.

Debra Brown, 16- year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brown of Dexter Route One, has brown eyes brown hair and is 5 feet 4 inches tall. English literature is her favorite class at Richland High School. She is sponsored by the United Methodist Women of Essex.

Diana Conner, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Conner of Parma Route One. Art is her favorite class at Richland High School. She has blue- green eyes and light brown hair and is 5 feet 4 1/2 inches tall. She is sponsored by the senior class of Richland High School.

Joyce Griffin, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Griffin of Matthews Route One. History is the favorite subject of this 5- foot 3- inch junior at Matthews High School. She has brown eyes and brown hair and is sponsored by Matthews High School.

Susan Hathaway, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hathaway of Bernie. She is 5 feet 5 1/2 inches tall and has blue eyes and blonde hair. Speech is her favorite subject at Bernie High School. Miss Hathaway recently was chosen Miss Stoddard County for 1973. She is sponsored by the Dexter Jaycee Wives. (No picture was submitted.)

Cheryl Ann Johnson, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Johnson of Sikeston Route Three, is a junior at Matthews High School. She has blue eyes and red hair and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. Chemistry and art are her favorite classes. She is sponsored by the Matthews Firettes.

Pam Redman, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Redman of Advance Route One. French and English are favorite classes of this 5- foot 9- inch senior at Advance High School. She has brown- green eyes and brown hair. Advance High School is sponsoring Miss Redman. (No picture was submitted.)

Funds sought for burn victim

PORTAGEVILLE — The Business and Professional Women's Club is sponsoring a fund drive for the benefit of 12- year- old Eddie Shankle who is in critical condition at the St. John's Mercy Hospital Burn Center in St. Louis.

Young Shankle was severely burned over 85 per cent of his body early Saturday morning when his clothing was ignited by a flash fire. The fire occurred in a playhouse in the Shankle back yard where the boy and some friends had spent the night. Shankle reportedly was starting a fire with gasoline.

An Eddie Shankle Fund has been established at Farmers Bank in Portageville

No inquest planned in baby death

NEW MADRID — No inquest will be held in connection with the drowning death of 22-month- old Bryant Lee Bright, whose body was found about noon Wednesday in Wolfhole Ditch near Matthews, according to New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton.

Mrs. Edith Frohock of New Madrid Route One and Mrs. Gertrude McCoy of Matthews Route One spotted the body lying among limbs in about two feet of water directly under the Interstate 55 bridge near the Highway 80 interchange. The body was recovered about three miles downstream from where he apparently had fallen into the water.

Hundreds of volunteers and police officers had conducted a widespread ground and air search for the child after he was reported missing about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The child, who disappeared while under the care of his aunt, Mrs. Sue Bright of East Prairie, reportedly wandered away from her car, in which he had been left asleep. Mrs. Bright said she was away from the car no more than five

Hayti police chief dies

HAYTI — Fred Morgan "Fritz" McKay, chief of police of Hayti for nine years, died at 10:20 p.m. Wednesday at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital of an apparent heart attack.

The highway patrol said today that McKay, 44, had gone to the hospital about 9:30 p.m. after having severe pains in his left arm. He was off duty and had been doing some carpentry work at his home, the patrol said.

The body is at John W. German Funeral Home in Hayti.

Tanner is last entry

The final entry has been received by American Legion officials for Miss Sikeston competition Friday night. Twenty- five Sikeston High School seniors have completed applications for the contest.

Jennifer Tanner, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Tanner, 901 Sikes Ave., has brown eyes and brown hair. She is 5 feet 2½ inches tall and her favorite subject is art.

Ambulance service to halt

DEXTER — After reviewing the new state law which restricts and regulates ambulance service, area funeral directors decided Wednesday night that they have no recourse but to discontinue ambulance services, effective Jan. 1, 1974.

The action was taken at an emergency services meeting at Hickory Log Restaurant.

The law, which takes effect July 1, 1974, sets up more stringent regulations for operation of an ambulance service and provides for a board to set up guidelines.

Under the new law, ambulance services will have to be staffed by two specially trained workers 24 hours a day seven days a week for each ambulance, plus a dispatcher. And the service must have a backup ambulance unit with the same qualifications as the first unit.

The ambulances will be required to have more equipment than most funeral home ambulances now have and head room requirements would be increased somewhat.

Funeral homes which will discontinue services include: Watkins and Sons Funeral Homes of Dexter, Parma, Puxico and Morehouse; Boyd Funeral Home of Malden; Chiles- Cooper Funeral Home of Bloomfield; Richards Funeral Home of New Madrid; Ponder Funeral Home of Lilbourn; Landess Funeral Homes of Malden, Campbell and Holcomb; Rainey Funeral Home of

Car tie-ups caused by gas closings

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A protest closing by service station dealers created massive traffic jams in the St. Louis area before many stations closed at midnight Wednesday, but police said the traffic situation was back to normal this morning.

"I guess they all gassed up last night," a police officer said, noting that thousands of cars formed lines several blocks long and blocked intersections in a last-minute attempt Wednesday to get to a gasoline pump.

Some drivers waited an hour or more to fill up before midnight, but the lines at service stations remaining open today were considerably shorter and, in some cases, there was no wait at all.

A spot check near the downtown St. Louis area found five of 10 stations open this morning, and a similar situation was reported in St. Louis County. Service stations in the Illinois portion of the metropolitan area were not affected by the closing.

About 800 service station operators voted to close their stations from midnight Wednesday until midnight next Tuesday as a protest against Phase 4 restrictions on the retail price of gasoline. The move came after a regular meeting of the Service Station Dealers Association of Missouri had adjourned. A spokesman said about 400 association members and another 400

Denkins death ruled suicide

HAYTI — Pemiscot County Coroner Jimmy Dean, Wednesday ruled suicide as the cause of death of Elbert Denkins, 66, of Hayti. Denkins was killed Tuesday night as a result of a fall from the Highway 84 overpass onto Interstate 55 at Hayti. His body was then run over by several vehicles.

The highway patrol reported Wednesday that Denkins either fell, jumped or was pushed off the overpass.

Lemonds to head patrol office here

Sgt. Winifred Eugene Lemonds of the highway patrol has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant and has been assigned to the Troop E satellite headquarters in Sikeston effective next Monday.

The satellite office will serve Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau and Perry counties.

Lemonds was appointed trooper on Aug. 1, 1952 and stationed in Sikeston. He was transferred to Portageville in 1954. In October of 1955 he was assigned to Poplar Bluff to the commercial motor vehicle enforcement division in charge of weight stations and offices. He was promoted to sergeant in 1958.

Lemonds and his wife Olene have two children, Mrs. Mary Ann Cowart of Tulsa, Okla. and Randy of the home.

Kirkpatrick to crown Cotton Carnival Queen

James C. Kirkpatrick, Missouri secretary of state, will be in Sikeston Saturday to serve as honorary marshal of the 29th annual Cotton Carnival parade and crown the 1973 Cotton Carnival queen.

The parade will start at 10:30 a.m., and the queen contest will follow after the parade.

Kirkpatrick was elected secretary of state in 1964 and has held the office since that time. As secretary of state, he has modernized and streamlined office operations, installed and staffed new departments, modernized state publications and centralized and began microfilming 250,000 corporation files

Prior to election as secretary of state, he was executive secretary to Gov. Forrest Smith and campaign director in two successful statewide campaigns for improving roads, streets and highways.

James Kirkpatrick

He also is a past president of the Missouri 4-H Foundation board of trustees and was a member of the board of regents of Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg and served 10 years as president of the board.

Before entering political life, Kirkpatrick was publisher of the Windsor Review and was former editor of the Warrensburg Star-Journal and Jefferson City News-Tribune. He is a past president of Missouri Press Association, Central Missouri Press Association and Democratic Editors of Missouri.

He has received a medal from the University of Missouri School of Journalism for distinguished service to journalism.

He has been honored and recognized by many other organizations.

He was born in Braymer and educated at Northeast High School in Kansas City, Central Missouri State College and the University of Missouri School of Journalism in Columbia.

He is married to the former Jessamine Elizabeth Young, and they have one son and three grandchildren.

Exploring program takes on new concept

By PAT GROJEAN

Learning the inside workings of a specific career while still in high school, providing a service to the community, having fun and earning money are some of the things the Explorer program in Sikeston is trying to help youngsters accomplish.

The Sikeston exploring program is in the process of expanding in order to offer more fields of participation for interested high school students.

Explorer posts have taken on a new look and direction in the past year. Although still a part of the Boy Scout organization, they are no longer tightly associated with scouting. The Explorer program is now co-educational and designed basically for career orientation.

There are currently three Explorer posts in Sikeston with three more in the planning stages.

The posts are formed to be of interest to students and are structured by members of the group.

The oldest Sikeston Explorer post has been in operation a little over a year. It is a sailboating group under the direction of the Rev. Tom Bass.

A police cadet group was formed a year ago and is under the direction of Sgt. Richard Couch.

The newest post is based around stocks and bonds and has been in existence about six months. Mikell Kilgore is the advisor for this post.

Three posts are currently being formed and will give interested youngsters a chance to participate and learn about firefighting and the fire department, newspaper and commercial radio broadcasting.

Advisors for the groups are scheduled to be Larry Linnemeyer, fire department; Tony Pippen, newspaper; and Chuck Layton, commercial radio broadcasting.

The Explorer posts in Sikeston are being set up with several criteria. The posts must help a young person learn more about the career around which the post is based. They are designed to help students choose a career, before they graduate, by actually working within that area. A student can move from one post to another if he or she desires.

The posts must have some way of presenting what they are learning to the community and must find a way to help or inform the community.

Explorer groups must find a way to raise money by working within their career or putting to practice what they are learning.

Tying all of the above criteria together is the element of fun.

There are currently about 25- 30 high school- aged persons in the three existing posts. They meet about twice a month and are not strictly structured. Each group has an advisor from the professional field the group was formed around.

Kilgore, the Explorer chairman for the Okeechobee District, is trying to revamp the program.

In explaining ways in which each group might help the community, he said the police department Explorer post may offer to engrave household items with a Social Security number, thus helping to prevent crime.

Tentative plans for the fire department's explorers are to have the group offer to conduct survey and mark fire hazards within a house.

The groups would take donations for their services, thus earning money.

The stocks and bonds group prepares a report on specific stocks and interesting articles on economics each month and distributes them to interested persons in exchange for a donation. The report is designed to publicize the learning experiences of members of the post and demonstrate their ability to understand the securities market.

The Explorer program is not geared to the size of the program but to the young people. More posts will be formed as interest is shown in a particular field, Kilgore said.

A special program is being planned to help recruit young people for the new posts and to determine if there is interest in forming posts in fields not now covered.

THE WIDE WORLD OF DISNEY

Walt Disney has been dead nearly seven years, but the entertainment empire he built continues to thrive and expand. Films, comic books and television spread the Disney gospel of unrelenting cheerfulness, year after year. California's Disneyland and Florida's Disney World are among the country's most popular tourist attractions. And yet this colossus of the entertainment world is only 50 years old. It was in October 1923 that Walt and Roy Disney formed the company that later became Walt Disney Productions.

The first Disney superstar was Mickey Mouse, who created a sensation in Steamboat Willie, a 1928 cartoon film that was the first of its kind to employ sound. More ambitious projects followed. Flowers and Trees (1932) used the Technicolor process for the first time in the animated cartoon field. Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (1937), probably Disney's finest achievement, was the first full- length animated feature.

It's easy to poke fun at the mawkishness of the typical Disney product, and many critics have done so. Novelist James A. Michener has asserted that "One of the most disastrous cultural influences ever to hit America was Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse, that idiot optimist." Film critic Richard Schickel once wrote of the Disney empire: "As capitalism, it is a work of genius; as culture, it is mostly a horror." Here again, though, Disney had the last laugh. New York City's citadel of culture, Lincoln Center, recently presented a month- long Disney festival.

CONSUMERISM'S OTHER FACE

Consumerism has two faces, the one with which the public is most familiar is the grim visage of a consumerist trading an wielding a club of laws and regulations striking down with equal impartiality consumer free choice and retailer independence. The other face of consumerism is a growing information and educational drive to help consumers become wiser shoppers. In the opinion of a top official of the country's largest trading stamp concern, the latter type of "Consumerism is here to stay ...."

The trading stamp company executive added that her company is heavily involved in consumer education programs and cooperates with many other agencies and groups, particularly those involved with youth activities such as 4-H and Future Farmers of America. The kind of consumerism that stresses education is in keeping with the best tradition of the U. S. marketing system -- a system that rests upon a competitively inspired drive to give consumers what they want, where they want it and when they want it. As self- service became one of the system's principal features, the counterpart of innovative shortcuts to lower prices has been a need for greater buyer wisdom. In the words of the trading stamp company official, today's shopper "... is faced with many more decisions. You used to be able to ask the sales help for aid in decisions but now because of the necessity of getting the shopper in and out quickly and easily, she must make more on her own."

Consumer education is, in reality, an enlightened step forward for the basic institution of promotion and advertising which, in the final analysis, is the foundation of a consumer- oriented, free market.

BEWARE THE CLAMOR

A most thoughtful editorial in the Englewood, Colorado, Herald, points out that a basic issue has been raised in the course of applications of investor- owned power companies for rate increases -- rate increases made necessary by the steady upward pressure on costs that has accompanied inflation.

The Herald's comment was occasioned by the tone of the opposition in testimony before the Public Utilities Commission during the rate increase hearing of a local power company. It said, "We have misgivings that a utility's request for a rate increase is being used to condition the public into setting up a clamor for public ownership ..." The Herald editorial then noted that a so-called citizens' lobby was using the utility rate increase question as an opportunity, to not only oppose any rate increase no matter how necessary, but to promote the goals of socialism -- government takeover of basic enterprises such as the electric utilities. In commenting on the principle of public ownership -- socialism -- the Herald observes, "... to live under a socialist - nationalization regime is to appreciate too late how little sway the public is allowed to exert over policies and rates and cost of things government - owned and controlled ... The customer, the user, the public -- is told what the cost is ... and the rates are applied without recourse."

Moreover, representative government is the ultimate victim when government becomes the chief source of employment. A massive government - owned bureaucratized industry could exert economic coercion to the point that political liberty could be threatened.

'LANGUAGE OF DECEIT' WE'RE 'CAREFULLY TAUGHT' — BY TV

By the time an American youngster reaches the age of 14, he has watched 20,000 hours of television, has seen approximately 18,000 murders or acts of violence and has watched 350,000 commercials.

"Whether we like it or not, much of this persuasion to which we are subjected is deceitful, if only because it is insidious," says David Burmester, a California high school teacher.

Writing in Media & Methods magazine, a publication covering audio- visual and other modern teaching techniques for secondary schools and teacher education, he states that "audiences of the future must be educated to cope with the language of deceit.

Because the successful TV commercial does more than inform, "it conditions," the matter is of such urgency that courses in persuasion must not be put off until high school but must be launched in the elementary levels, he says.

It is more than just a matter of bringing students face to face with the commercial advertising persuaders of our society, say Burmester. He points out that in the last presidential election, more than half of all promotion budgets were spent on television.

The military, too, habitually indulges in euphemistic phraseology, and did so especially during the Vietnam war, and the current "media- aware national administration," he charges, has been known to dip into the language of deceit on occasion.

Some of the ideas he suggests for such a course include finding ads for the same product in different magazines and studying the chance in tone and language in each of the magazines.

"Teaching kids to deal with the language of deceit is really an excercise in becoming a resourceful and critical media consumer while directing students to become the same," he says.

No doubt such courses would be worthwhile, if only by making students more aware of the language we use, and misuse, grammatically and otherwise.

Yet remembering Lincoln's words about fooling all of the people all of the time, it may be wondered if Americans are as malleable or as gullible as some critics fear.

Studies have shown that while advertising is effective in persuading consumers to buy one brand of a given product in preference to another, and is useful in introducing new products, it is questionable whehter it can generate a need that is not already present.

An example is seen in the sale of cigarettes, which continue to climb even after their advertising was banned on television. Another is the almost absolute failure of intensive media campaigns to persuade people to use the seat belts in their automobiles.

At least one other study of youngsters found that by the time kids get to be about nine or 10 years old, they have become pretty sophisticated and realistic judges of the stuff that is fed them over television.

The real danger of the "language of deceit" may not be that Americans are being conditioned to believe everything but that they may become so cynical that eventually they will believe nothing.

REAL PUBLIC SERVICE

An executive of one of the nation's largest retail merchandising institutions was invited to Bismarck, North Dakota, sometime ago to attend the dedication ceremonies of a new shopping center named in his honor. His remarks to the citizens of Bismarck carried a message of the deepest significance to all of the people in the United States.

He noted, "... there are millions of Americans today who do not understand free enterprise economics. Millions of people, both young and old, do not stop to think why it is that they have and enjoy what they do have -- which is the highest standard of living in the world."

He pointed out that the young people of today, who consider careers in business as dull and uninspring and who prefer "public service" careers, fail to take into account that it is in the competitive, challenging world of business where the greatest opportunity for service lies. He said, "Corporate taxes paid on the municipal, state and federal levels are indispensable in government programs for the health, education and social welfare of this country. And the work of private foundations would be seriously hindered without the funds generated by business and industry. Finally, the business community is a prime supporter of private colleges and universities..."

While the retailing executive did not say so, he could have observed that his career, which accompanied an innovative revolution in retail distribution, constituted a public service of the highest order. Through his efforts and those of other leaders like him, who believed in the philosophy of high- volume, low- cost merchandising, the living standards of millions of people are higher than would otherwise have been possible. This achievement was accomplished through the exercise of the profit motive, and the public was the chief benefactor.

MURDER, INC.

It seems that the shocking headlines of our daily newspapers eventually would subside. Instead, they reflect a constant increase in the murder incidents around the nation. The mass murders in Houston caused tremors in a normally stoic readership of the big journals. The sadistic slaying of teenage boys makes one wonder what has happened to the moral and legal fiber of Republic USA.

The multiple slayings in the Houston area were brought to light only a few short years after mass homicides in California and the mass slaying of nurses in Chicago. The brutality of the murders was appalling.

Grievous as these cases are, they must not cause us to despair in our fight against crime. It should be pointed out that the police departments of the nation and the sheriffs' forces are undermanned. Most courts are facing overloaded dockets. The staffs of district attorneys are undermanned. In general, law enforcement is suffering from a lack of numbers and equipment.

Something can be done about this problem. We can all support our local police and prosecutors and courts. Elect good men and women for leadership in law enforcement. See to it that those who are hired to enforce the law get the training and the tools they need. If there are no citizens in your community who are participating in the Law- Aid program, get them started. You can be a leader in this unofficial program yourself. Get a Law- Aid chapter going now. Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Eyeballing the Mafia: Nation's Anti- Crime Strike Force Chiefs Meet: Launch Drive on Labor Racketeers

WASHINGTON--- There were some mighty healthy specimens in the Smithsonian Institution last Thursday and Friday. They were the nation's top specialists in crime digging--- the directors of 18 special anti- organized crime strike forces, their superiors and Assistant U. S. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen in charge of the Criminal Division--- proving Watergate hasn't exactly emmobilized him or the dragnet drive against the Mafia and its associates inside labor.

For two days this confidential anti- racketeering summit conference shuttled between closed- door conference rooms in the Justice Dept. and the Smithsonian.

And for two days these men, summoned from across the land, discussed the revival and speeding of a nationwide campaign against labor racketeers by "all" federal law enforcement agencies.

It appears the holiday is over for mobsters infiltrating powerful labor, looting some pension funds, terrorizing officials, rank- and- filers and employers alike, shaking down contractors and extorting millions of dollars annually.

The discussions went the whole route. There is need for beefing up intelligence on the labor front. There is need for specially trained lawyers. Time has come for a confrontation with the racketeers all the way from New York with its complex construction unions to Mafiosi now surveying "open" cities reaching from Atlanta to Los Angeles.

To take it step by step, the New England Mafia is "quiet" but the imprisoned Ray Patriarca of Providence, R. I., still is reputed to be the boss. He is doing 10 years for conspiracy to murder. But he's in the conveniently located Adult Corrections Institutions (sic) in Cranston, R. I.--- and the report is he has many couriers carrying his directives to the outside.

Some New England construction union leaders are crooked, to put it gently. And why did the judiciary conveniently keep Patriarca in the area, instead of sending him to the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary?

And at least one strike force chief remembers it was reported that anyone looking too closely at some New York construction unions would get a "bullet in the back." That was never denied. Nor was it investigated.

And there is the Chicago strike force now being reorganized by a newcomer, Peter Vaira. He's just been shifted in from the East. And reports have it that "there'll be action in Chicago soon enough."

He'll get at least 10 new prosecutive and investigative lawyers. And some Teamsters locals as well as construction units will be probed. It will take time. But the field is big and the Chicago strike force reaches from northern Indiana across to Milwaukee.

Despite the gory killings and car bombings of St. Louis pipefitters (plumbers) union local 562, "the racketeering surface hasn't been scratched there," one of the strike force conferees said. That covers East St. Louis across the Mississippi river as well, a very tough part of the country.

And then there is an arrogant antediluvian labor combine in Miami. This crisscrosses several industries. Some of it has tried to muscle in on the airport services--- such as catering. Some men have been indicted. Others will be.

There are other "institutions" in many cities such as Pittsburgh and, I'm told, parts of Ohio and Illinois where the anti- crime strike forces haven't yet made a dent on the syndicate- protected arrogant operations in which there is a terror tax, and where labor contracts simply are handed to restaurateurs, gas station operators, building contractors, truckers, et al., who are simply ordered to sign. It isn't a matter of "or else." It's a matter of picket lines (for sale) and crushing of business or slashing of supplies.

Some of those who met last Thursday and Friday for their two- day in- depth analysis and secret information exchange on labor racketeering see vast significance in the breaking out of world peace.

Time now has come, since we're out of Vietnam, despite high money rates, for the reconstruction of America's rotting inner cities and decrepit ancient cores such as the rebuilding which has revived the "downtowns" of Pittsburgh and Kansas City.

It's, therefore, on the local fronts that the Mafia- type racketeer is most effective. The building and construction trades are made to order for the hoods--- what with wintry weather and contract deadlines to meet. Any delay can cost millions of dollars on major projects. So the building and construction trades unions and some Teamsters outfits where the power carries over from the old days are the targets.

This new campaign will embarrass national AFL- CIO construction union chiefs, especially as they prepare to meet for their national reorganizing biennial convention in Bal Harbour (Fla.) during mid- October. These national figures, moving on a national echelon, can't control many of their locals.

Frequently, trustees aren't put in because there are few men who'll dare attempt to take over a Mafia- controlled local until there is a conviction. Well, there now may be a run of convictions-- in the next six or eight months--- as a result of the decision last week to go gung- ho on the labor front.

If the national leaders can't handle the mob, the new strike forces will. America has to rehouse itself and no terror tax should be paid to the second government of the underworld.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

A $100,000 Donation And the Air West Deal

LAS VEGAS-- Phantom billionaire Howard Hughes went through the back door of the White House in 1969 to gain presidential approval for his purchase of Air West.

Because the airline is an international carrier, with routes to Canada and Mexico, the sale had to have President Nixon's okay.

The backdoor approach was made by Richard Danner, a Hughes hotelman, to the President's sidekick, Bebe Rebozo. Despite Hughes' poor management of Trans World Airlines, the Civil Aeronautics Board approved the Air West deal on June 15, 1969. Nixon signed the papers six days later.

Not long afterward, $50,000 from a Hughes gambling casino was slipped to Rebozo by Danner. Still another $50,000 was passed from Danner to Rebozo the following summer.

KNEW EACH OTHER

Sources close to Robert Maheu, who headed Hughes' Nevada operation in those days, have told us about the secret payments.

Danner was chosen to seek Rebozo's intervention in the Air West acquisition, they say, because the two men had known each other in Miami.

Later, at Hughes' behest, Maheu instructed Danner to hand over $50,000 to Rebozo. Maheu insisted the money was intended not as a bribe but as a belated contribution to Nixon's 1968 campaign.

The second $50,000 payoff was made in Maheu's presence. He claimed this was a donation to the 1970 congressional campaign.

WHITE HOUSE DENIAL

A White House spokesman denied that President Nixon ever received the $100,000 from Hughes. Neither Rebozo nor Danner could be reached for comment.

Investigators for the Senate Watergate Committee are trying to trace what happened to the money after it reached Rebozo. Sources close to Rebozo would say only that he was never diverted campaign money into his own or the President's personal projects.

There is also interest in the Danner- Rebozo dealings at the Securities and Exchange Commission, which is secretly investigating Hughes' acquisition of Air West.

Our own investigation began two years ago when we first reported that $100,000 had been siphoned from the Silver Slipper, a Hughes gambling emporium, and had been delivered through Rebozo as a cash "campaign contribution" to President Nixon.

MEIER CONTACTED

Again last week, I flew to Las Vegas and Los Angeles seeking additional facts. My associate George Clifford made a separate 9,000- mile swing to Vancouver, Canada, and to southern California.

In the outskirts of Vancouver, he located John Meier, a former Hughes consultant, who contended that the President's brother, Donald Nixon, had also played a role in the Air West deal.

This is the same brother who stirred up a national controversy by borrowing $205,000 from Hughes in 1956 and putting up only a $13,000 lot as collateral. Although he never paid back the loan and embarrassed his famous brother, Don Nixon continued to promote business deals with the Hughes organization.

As the Air West negotiations approached a climax in 1969, Meier was suddenly ordered to keep Don Nixon out of the transaction. "I was told," said Meier, by Gen. Ed Nigro of the Hughes staff "to stay away from Don because they had the Air West situation under control, and they didn't want Don and myself screwing it up.

IMPORTANT LIAISON

"I was also told by General Nigro that Dick Danner of the Hughes organization was working along with Bebe Rebozo and that this liaison was more important than working through Don Nixon."

Shortly thereafter, Meier resigned from the Hughes staff. He is now being sued by the Hughes organization for his involvement in the purchase of mining properties for the eccentric billionaire. Meier is also under indictment on a tax evasion charge.

Meier said Don Nixon had recruited ex- Rep. Patrick J. Hillings, R- Calif., a close friend of Richard Nixon's and a director of Air West, to swing the Air West deal. We have seen billings which show that Hillings charged Hughes $4,000 a month in legal fees, plus expenses.

One bill for $2,305.85 included dinners with White House staff members and a "reception for White House staff and new officials of Nixon Administration."

DIFFERENT DEAL

Sources close to the Hughes operation claim Hillings was paid for working on a helicopter contract, not for the Air West deal. Hillings couldn't be reached for comment.

A call to Don Nixon's unlisted telephone number produced a voice, sounding suspiciously like Nixon's, which insisted Nixon wouldn't talk to us. But in July 1971, during our earlier investigation, George Clifford had a long conversation with Donald.

"John Meier called me and said Hughes wanted to buy Air West," Donald said. "I called Pat Hillings and the chairman (of Air West). He said Hillings was okay to swing the deal. Hillings put it together, but it wouldn't have gone through if I didn't call the chairman.

"Hillings got $50,000. I think what I did is worth a finder's fee."

He said he believed Hughes should give the catering contract for the airline to the Marriott Corporation, a hotel, restaurant and catering chain, which employs Donald as a vice president.

We have affidavits from people to whom Don Nixon has said he never became involved in business deals without first checking with his brother, the President. But White House sources have sworn to us that the President has taken pains to keep Donald from getting involved in deals which might embarrass the White House. This is the reason, say these sources, that the President ordered wiretaps on his brother's telephone.

NEW YORK (AP) — The world may be destroyed again by flood. The world may be consumed to a cinder by a vast atomic fireball.

But some astute students of our planet see a fate possibly even more imminent: the human race may simply be suffocated by increasing tidal waves of government forms.

Filling out forms has within the last half century become perhaps the major nuisance of civilization. It is such an essential part of modern life it remains surprising that no college gives an advanced course in how to do it.

You can take courses in the history of early Roman band instruments how to make pottery, or how to unlock a medieval chastity belt — but there is no course to solve one of the real survival problems of our times, how to fill out government forms.

These forms beset us at every step throughout our existence. In fact, there are only two major events in our lives at which we don't have to fill out a government form — birth and death. On these occasions the paperwork is done for us by grudging doctors, whose signatures testify on the appropriate documents that we are legally alive or legally dead.

A smart child can also usually cozen relatives or family friends to sign his baptismal certificate, but after that he is pretty much on his own. Pen in hand, he spends the rest of his days filling out forms.

You have to fill out a form to pay taxes.

You have to fill out a form to open a business.

You have to fill out a form to buy a house or a car.

You have to fill out a form to build an addition to your house.

You have to fill out another form if you want to burn down your barn legally.

You have to fill out a form to get a wedding certificate.

You have to fill out a form to get a divorce.

You have to fill out a form to get a food stamp or a Social Security payment.

You have to fill out a form to vote, travel to another country, get into or out of the armed forces, drive a car or keep a dog within the limits of most cities.

Isn't there anything a man can do anymore without having to fill out a form first?

Yes, a few. For example, he can rob a bank or steal an automobile.

But if he gets caught, he will find his adventures in filling out government forms are only beginning.

Area traffic injures 3

Three persons were injured in two area traffic accidents Wednesday, the highway patrol announced today.

Larry Montgomery, 32, of Poplar Bluff received several broken ribs at 11:30 a.m. on Route N one-half mile north of Fagus when he was thrown from the cab of his bob truck after being forced off the road by another vehicle.

He was taken to Poplar Bluff Hospital.

Two persons were injured in a head-on collision at 5:15 p.m. on a gravel road five miles northeast of Marble Hill.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by James Reeves, 29, of Chaffee met a pickup truck driven west by Ora Dockins, 57, of Marble Hill on a blind curve and collided.

Nancy Dockins, 51, received broken ribs and Peggy Dockins, 14, suffered an ankle injury. Both were taken to a doctor's office in Jackson for treatment.

Drug display at carnival

Police have set up a display of drugs, weapons and investigation equipment used by the department in a tent on the Cotton Carnival midway.

Police invite the public to see the display. An officer will be on duty to answer any questions, and a handout fact sheet will be available Saturday.

The police display is located at the corner of Front and North New Madrid streets.

Walpole says nobody fired

DEXTER — "Nobody has been fired from the police department," Acting Chief of Police Sanders Walpole declared Wednesday.

"All of these men, including former acting chief Tom Nunn, quit, but were not fired," Walpole declared.

Walpole declared that Nunn was "demoted and would not accept that demotion and quit -- he was not fired."

"The three other policemen and the police dispatcher all quit of their own choice," Walpole declared.

Walpole also revealed that the three policemen later made an offer to return to the police department, and contacted Mayor Willis Conner in the presence of Walpole.

"They offered to come back as policemen, but with certain restrictions," Walpole said.

"Those restrictions, I simply could not accept and so they remained off the force," the new acting chief stated.

"But I can state flatly that nobody who works for the police department has been fired from his job -- all have quit of their own choice," Walpole said.

He said remaining members of the police department and the new acting chief worked extended hours during the past several days to continue police protection in the city.

"We have had two- car police service in the city at all times." Walpole declared.

He said the remaining vacancies on the police department would be filled as soon as possible.

Dexter views highway plans

DEXTER — A group of Dexter businessmen, members of the highway committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday received a "preview of the proposed plan for the modernization of Highway 60 in its sweep around Dexter.

The group generally approved of the proposed plan, which, it was understood, is a tentative plan and won't be built in the immediate future.

But the so- called "five-year plan" of the State Highway Department calls for the building of the two additional lanes around Dexter, with a full interchange to be built immediately west of the Dexter Drive- In Theater, and another at Route ZZ, west of Dexter.

The group reviewed the plans in the offices of Lionel Murray, District 10 engineer of the State Highway Department at Sikeston.

Generally, the additional lane of highway would follow the present route in its sweep around Dexter to the north -- the major change being at its western edge where the present Highway 114 would be re- routed beginning at a point just west of the drive- in theater. Here Highway 114 would swing northward and go into a full interchange with the new highway, near the present State Highway Department maintenance buildings.

In addition to the diamond- shaped interchange at that point, the highway department is contemplating an outer road to run along the south side of the new Highway to a point near the Dexter Memorial Hospital at One Mile Road, thus enabling speedy entrance to the hospital from four- lane U.S. 60.

Highway department officials said that it would be impossible to build a full interchange on One Mile Road near the hospital because of space limitations. The present One Mile Road intersection would remain, according to the present plant, but would be an "at grade" interchange. The present entrance onto Highway 60 at Locust Street would be closed under the proposed plan.

Under the plan, Dexter would then have three interchanges leading from Highway 60 into Dexter. These would include the present Highway 60-25 interchange, the new one immediately west of the drive- in theater, and the third at Route ZZ in the rapidly developing west side.

Murray emphasized that this is merely a tentative plan, compiled by the highway department engineers after a survey and study of the area. It is subject to change and hearings on it will be held before it is formally approved. And, he also emphasized, it will be several years before such a road is built. However, planning on such project must start at this time, go through several levels for approval, before the plan is set for a final okay.

Members of the C of C committee who studied the plan included Harold Williams, chairman; Bob Robins; Percy Clippard; Lewis Rogers; and Barney Miller.

Eventually, Murray pointed out, all of Highway 60 will be four lane, and built to almost the same specifications as an interstate highway. Plans are already on the drawing board for taking the proposed new roadway around Dexter on the east to Poplar Bluff, going north of Poplar Bluff.

SUBURB LIB

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commuters are changing their spots, says The Road Information Program. Millions of metropolitan workers now drive to work and back without entering the central city.

By 1985, suburb-to-suburb travel will represent more than half of the work trips near our cities, according to the nonprofit research and information agency.

TRIP says the nation's capital is a good example of suburb liberation. Here, 41 per cent of all Washington-area commuters never enter the city, compared with 30 per cent 10 years ago.

If used correctly, liquid supplements may reduce protein cost of dairy rations.

Vandals strike feed store

Police today were investigating a breakin and vandalism at Gillis Feed and Seed Store, 420 West North, and a burglary at the Ivory Spencer home, 214 Felker.

Vandals apparently broke into the feed store and broke windows, damaged a door and took an unknown amount of pennies from a gum machine. The break-in apparently occurred sometime Wednesday night, police said.

Burglars broke into the Spencer home between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 6 a.m. today, taking a record player valued at $20. Entry was gained by pulling a screen off a window, police said.

WANTS DEATH PENALTY

DALLAS (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin said during the State Bar of Texas convention that he will go to Washington in the fall to urge that capital punishment be continued.

"Texas will seek to uphold the death penalty and I will go to the hearings," Martin said.

7 treated

Seven accident patients were treated Wednesday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Jerry W. Murphy, 22, Fisk, injured in motorcycle accident; Allen Turpin, 13, Sikeston, hit by car, bruised right thigh; Bryan Winfield, 4, Sikeston, injured right wrist in fall; Jimmie D. Hicks, 15, Sikeston, bruised right elbow in fall.

Miss Marshall is September bride

Mrs. Jesse Sherwood Jackson

CHARLESTON — Arrangements of white and peach daisies and single tapers placed under each statue formedthe altar setting for the exchange of marriage vows between Miss Deborah Lea Marshall and Jesse Sherwood Jackson at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 1 in St. Henry's Catholic Church. The Revs. Michael Swalina and Larry Long officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lee Marshall and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Jackson.

Dr. Carter P. Fenton, soloist, accompanied at the organ by his wife, sang "Sweethearts", "Try To Remember" and "The Lord's Prayer", as the couple knelt.

Serving her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Ed C. Marshall III of Charleston. Bridesmaids were Miss Rebel Story, Miss Judith Deline and Miss Lucinda Simmons of Charleston, Miss Kristi Anderson of Sikeston and Miss Abbigail Winston Lankhiet of Memphis, Tenn.

Their formal gowns of peach poly crepe featured empire waists with a yoke effect of Cluny lace, full bishop sleeves and Gibson Girl necklines. Each carried nosegays of white mums centered with talisman roses.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of sata peau. The empire design featured a yoke effect of Knottingham lace accented with Venise lace and pearls. The long, slim sleeves were of lace and her demi- bell skirt swept to a cathedral- length train, entirely flounced with shirred Knottingham lace.

She wore a mantilla of Knottingham lace edged with tiny Venise lace and carried a white Bible, a gift from the groom, topped with a white orchid.

The groom chose is brother, Kenny Jackson of Sikeston, as his best man. Groomsmen were Albert and Howard Jackson of Sikeston, two other brothers, and Mike Robbins, Jamie Pollock and Robbie DeField of Charleston.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Marshall wore a formal gown of beige and avocado green, accented with beige braid. Mrs. Jackson was attired in a formal gown of navy blue, complemented with red and white. Each mother wore white orchid corsages.

Honored guests were Mrs. R. C. Marshall of Charleston and Mrs. Lee Skaggs of East Prairie, grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. Elmer Rice of Matthews, great- great aunt of the bride.

The reception following the ceremony was held in the Knights of Columbus Hall. Presiding at the bride's table were Miss Barbara Thomas of St. Louis, Miss Becky Miller of Jackson and Miss Susan Rice of Kennett, sorority sisters, and Miss Susan Wilkerson of Cape Girardeau.

Rice bags were presented to guests at the reception by Miss Mindy Skaggs, niece of the bride, Miss Jana Jackson, niece of the groom. Miss Dixie Skaggs, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The young couple left the following day for Houston, Tex., where they will make their home.

The new Mrs. Jackson attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau for there and a half years and was a member of Delta Delta Delta social sorority.

Jackson, a graduate of Southeast Missouri State with a bachelor of science degree in biology, is associated with the personnel department of Roadway Inc. at Houston.

Ann Landers

Carnival freak shows must also obey animal cruelty laws

Dear Ann Landers: You are going to settle this once and for all. The question: Is it adultery if a married man takes a married woman out once a week for dinner and conversation? My husband is the married man and the married woman is his secretary. He swears there is no sex involved. According to him, they have a lot to discuss and it is best done outside the office. He never gets home before 2:00 a.m. from these "sexless dinner discussions."

My husband claims adultery is an involvement between a married person and a single person. If they are BOTH married, he says, it is not considered adultery, no matter what they do.

I am concerned because this woman's husband is a policeman and he carries a gun. What do you say? -- Not Stupid

Dear N.S.: Adultery is a sexual relationship between a married person and someone who is not his or her spouse. The "someone" can be either married or single.

If that lady's husband catches them he is not likely to discuss word definitions. Tell your husband I said so.

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me for weeks. Please tell me what can be done about it.

I saw a freak show at a carnival and it made me sick. There was a five- legged sheep, a hairless dog and Siamese-twin cows. The animals were pathetic. Their pens were absolutely filthy. The food was mixed in with their own excrement. The smell was unbearable. I'm sure those pens hadn't been cleaned in months.

How can this cruelty be stopped? Are carnivals subject to local laws, or do they move so fast that nothing can be done? Please tell me -- Weak Stomach and Aching Heart

Dear W.S.: You should have called the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Although this advice is too late for you, it may not be too late for others.

Dear Ann Landers: Let's get down to basics about the husband who can't change a light bulb without breaking it. The difference between a man who can't fix things and the man who can is in the the training. Somewhere along the line the handy husband had a mother, a father, an uncle, or a neighbor who taught him how.

My dad taught me to fish, hunt, take care of a car and fix things in the house. You said you would never ask your husband to fix anything because you learned early it was easier and cheaper to hire it done before he messed it up. Well, I'll bet HIS father never taught him, which brings me to the point of this letter.

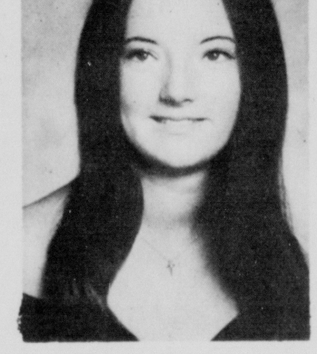
Some fathers don't teach their sons to be fixers because it takes too much patience. It's quicker and easier to do it themselves. I almost fell into that trap until my wife opened my eyes. She said, "You owe it to your son to teach him to be handy around the house, as your father taught you."

So here is a plea to all fathers of sons. If you know how, teach your sons. When they marry, their wives will love you for it. -- Handy Andy

Dear Andy: Thanks for some sterling advice that has never appeared in this space before. I frequently advise mothers to teach their daughters to cook, sew hems and buttons, scrub a floor and make beds, but never has anyone suggested that dads teach their sons to be fixers.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope to his newspaper.

Miss Gaines will wed James Michael



Diana Gaines

Mr. and Mrs. Carol Gaines, 110 Dacus Drive, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter Dianna Lynne to James Wyatt Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Michael of Memphis, Tenn.

The bride- elect is a 1972 graduate of Sikeston High School, and Michael is a 1972 graduate of Frayser High School in Memphis.

A Dec. 1 wedding is planned at Smith Street Church of God.

Communication urged between parents, teachers

Communication between parents and teachers was stressed Monday night at Southeast Elementary School's first Parent- Teacher Association meeting.

Ken Williams, president, greeted the large turnout of parents on hand to meet teachers and visit the rooms.

A general business meeting was held, then parents broke up into groups and visited their children's rooms and teachers to learn how their children will spend their school days this term.

The teachers also gained an opportunity to learn more about the students.

A membership drive has boosted Southeast PTA membership to 320, with 80 more needed to reach a goal of 400.

Mrs. Irene Smith's first grade won first place in room count when 58 per cent of the parents of students in her class attended the meeting.

Second place went to Mrs. Marian Pratt's second grade class which had 53 per cent of the parents attending.

Cowboys next test for Cards

DALLAS, Tex. — Unbeaten in two starts, including an upset of the Washington Redskins, the St. Louis Football Cardinals brace for another rugged assignment here Sunday when they take on the Dallas Cowboys in Texas Stadium. Kickoff is set for 1 p.m. (CDT).

Following the game, the Cardinals will return to St. Louis on October 7 to entertain the Oakland Raiders.

The Cowboy game, which will be televised regionally by CBS (KMOX-TV in St. Louis) and broadcast over the Cardinal network (KMOX AM-FM in St. Louis), will be an important early- season NFC Eastern Division matchup. The Cowboys will take a 2-0 record into Sunday's game.

After opening the season with a 34-23 victory at Philadelphia, the Cardinals made their home- opener an extremely successful one last Sunday, upending the defending NFC champion Washington Redskins, 34-27, before 50,316 excited fans in St. Louis.

"We, of course, were very pleased to beat the Redskins," Cardinal coach Don Coryell said. "I'm always optimistic no matter who we are playing. I don't think anything's impossible. It was a gratifying victory and a team effort all the way."

In the game, running back Donny Anderson scored three touchdowns, boosting his two- game total to six, Don Shy recorded a 97-yard kickoff return touchdown and Jim Bakken added two field goals and four extra points.

Quarterback Jim Hart, staying cool under the Redskins' pass rush, completed 17 of 28 passes for 286 yards and touchdown. Of the passes, rookie running back sensation Terry Metcalf caught six for 78 yards and tight end Jackie Smith added five for 129 yards.

Jim Hart (17), the Associated Press National Football League offensive player of the week, is shown hudling with his St. Louis Cardinal Football teammates while engineering the Big Red's 34-27 upset of the Washington Redskins Sunday. Hart will be calling the signals Sunday in Dallas, Tex., when the Red Birds go against the Cowboys.

8th grade grid opener Oct. 11

After a 5- year lapse, eighth grade football has been brought back in the Sikeston School system. Eighth grade Coach John Heacox said that this program will become an essential part of high school football. The team works mainly on the basic fundamentals of the game, Coach Heacox believes this will help the boys later in their varsity football program.

The team has 46 members which practice daily in preparation for their opening game October 11. The team will play a five game schedule starting with a home game against Kennett October 11. October 18 they travel to Poplar Bluff to face the Eighth Grade Mules. October 23 they will face the Blue Jays at Charleston, followed by the closing game at Cape Girardeau on October 31.

Anderson leading scorer

NEW YORK (AP) — O.J. Simpson could've watched last weekend's National Football League games from an easy chair and he still wouldn't have had to worry about anybody surpassing him in rushing.

Of course, he didn't. He was out there as usual with the rest of his Buffalo teammates, rushing against San Diego.

The problem was, the Chargers were ready for him. They "limited" him to 103 yards, far under his fantastic openinggame record 250. And without his thunderous running, the Bills lost 34-7.

Even without those 103 yards, though, Simpson still would lead the league's ground-gainers. He now has 353 yards and his closest challenger is Essex Johnson of Cincinnati, the American Conference runner-up with 221 yards.

Ron Johnson of the New York Giants, the National Conference leader, is third over-all with 208 and Dallas' Calvin Hill, fourth in the league, is second in the NFC with 201.

Pete Beathard of Kansas City retained the AFC passing leadership but Al Woodall, who came on to replace injured Joe Namath and will have to carry the New York Jets' quarterbacking chores for most of the season, is No. 1 in the conference. Dick Shiner of Atlanta, the NFC leader a week ago, slipped to No. 2 behind John Hadl of Los Angeles following the Rams' 31-0 blanking of the Falcons.

In pass receiving, Bob Tucker of the Giants, with 14 for 210 yards, assumed the NFC's top spot ahead of Charley Taylor of Washington as first-week leader Vic Washington of San Francisco slipped to third.

In the AFC, Mike Siani of Oakland, who led a week ago, fell completely out of the top 10, replaced at the top by J.D. Hill of Buffalo, with 10 receptions for 155 yards.

Donny Anderson of St. Louis, with six touchdowns—four rushing and two receiving—leads the league in scoring with 36 points.

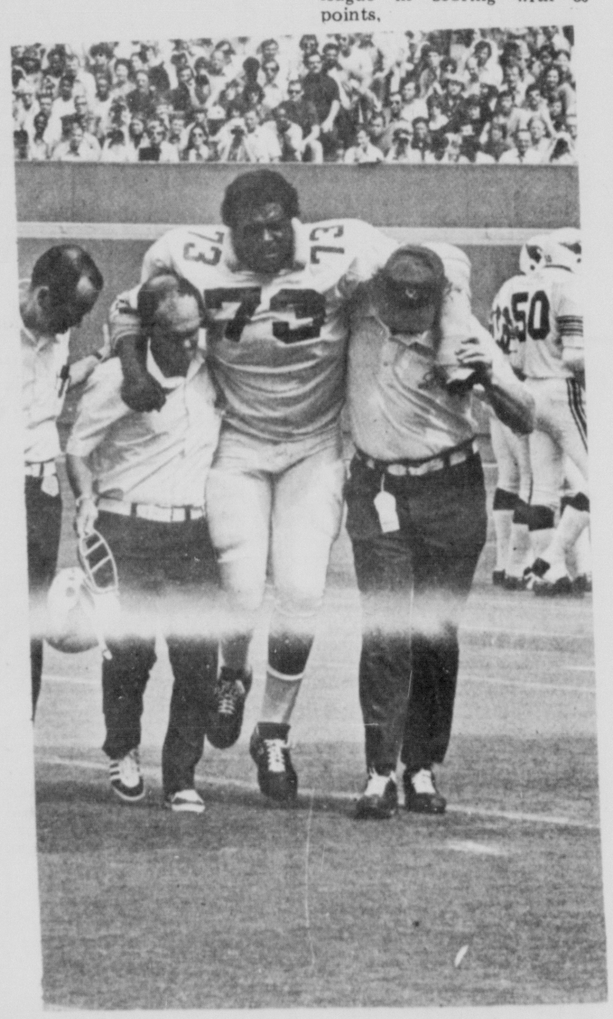
Sr. golf champs

Grover Greer, 83 year old golfer from Poplar Bluff, was the oldest player in the recent Senior Golf Association Tournament held at the Sikeston Country Club. A new score of 152 was the Sr. citizens low for the tournament.

Virgil Powell of Malden and Ervin Grief of Farmington were the Grand Champions. Mr. Powell was the Gross Champion and Grief was the Net Champion.

Powell was also awarded the honor of serving as President of the Association for the next year and hosting the event at Malden. Frank McClanhan of Jackson was elected Vice President and C. C. Scott as Perenial Secretary.

The winner of the various age categories were Yewell Camp of Dexter in the 50-54 age group. Robert Byrnes of Charleston and Mack Bain of Parma were the runners-up. Lanny Black of Charleston won the 55-59 age bracket, followed by Fred Kurre of Cape Girardeau and Roy Adler of Bonne Terre. Ages 60-64 were led by H. Hequembourg of Charleston with J. F. Cox of Sikeston second. Cliff Corkins of Cape Girardeau won the 65-69 set in the Gross and Marvin Blanton of Flat River won the Net 65-69 group. The Over 70 Gross was won by of Malden. Grover Greer of Poplar Bluff won the Over 80 age group.



McMillan injured

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A knee injury suffered during the St. Louis football Cardinals' 34-27 upset over the Washington Redskins Sunday has cost the team the services of veteran tackle Ernie McMillan. A spokesman for the team said the injury to the left knee of the 275- pound, 6- foot- 5 offensive tackle will not require surgery.

McMillan, 35, owns the team record of appearing in 162 consecutive games. He is also just seven games short of matching the retired Larry Wilson's career total of 169 games with the cardinals.

Cards lose McMillan

The St. Louis Football Cardinals have lost the services of veteran tackle Ernie McMillan for three to four weeks. McMillan is shown being helped off the field by team trainers.

Pirates close in on Mets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Mets' precarious perch atop the National League East wobbled when they lost to Montreal, yet the team is exuding confidence reserved for clubs who have all but clinched a division pennant.

"Hell! We're still in it, ain't we?," Mets' Manager Yogi Berra said Wednesday night after New York lost 8-5 to Montreal and had their NL East lead over Pittsburgh whittled to one-half game. The Pirates overwhelmed the Philadelphia Phillies 13-2.

"Pittsburgh has to play tomorrow night and they might lose," Berra said.

But doesn't the slim lead worry the Mets?

"I don't think we've had any desperate feelings in a week," Mets' reliever Tug McGaw said.

Bob Bailey's two-run homer in the seventh snapped a 5-5 tie after the Mets had tied it in the fifth on Jerry Grote's run-scoring single.

The Expos, who are tied with Chicago 3½ games out in fourth place in the NL East, jumped on Mets' starter Tom Seaver for a 4-0 lead in the first inning.

In other National League games, San Diego beat Cincinnati 5-1, St. Louis edged the Cubs 1-0, Houston blanked San Francisco 5-0 and Los Angeles beat Atlanta 9-8.

Richie Hebner, Gene Clines and Dal Maxvill combined to drive in 10 runs for the Pirates and then turned their attention on the pulsating division race.

"That means we're all even in the loss column, so the Mets aren't in a position anymore to clinch it by winning the rest of their games," Maxvill said after learning about New York's defeat. "The Mets have been hot and hopefully they'll cool off."

The Pirates play Philadephia again tonight and then have three games with Montreal over the weekend. The Mets close out their season this weekend at Chicago with a four-game series.

Los Angeles 9, Atlanta 8

Ken McMullen drove home the winning run with a pinchhit double in the ninth inning, capping a three-run eruption that catapulted the Dodgers to victory.

San Diego 5, Cincinnati 1

Nate Colbert, Dave Roberts, Dave Hilton and Clarence Gaston hit home runs and helped San Diego pitcher Randy Jones, 6-6, record his first career victory against the Reds.

St. Louis 1, Chicago 0

Ted Simmons' single scored Lou Brock in the first inning and settled a tight pitching battle between the Cards' Rick Wise, 15-12, and the Cubs' Bill Bonham, 7-5. The Cards are in third place in the NL East race, three games back.

Cliff Johnson hit a two-run homer and Cesar Cedeno and Roger Metzger added run-scoring singles in support of Dave Roberts' seven-hit pitching.

American League results: Cleveland 1, Boston 0; Baltimore 4, Detroit 0; Milwaukee 5, New York 2; Kansas City 6, Chicago 2; Minnesota 4, Oakland 1 and California 5, Texas 4.

Briefs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have pulled to within one-half game of the first-place Mets in the National League East Division race.

Richie Hebner drove in four runs and Gene Clines and Dal Maxvill knocked in three each to power Pittsburgh past the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night 13-2.

New York saw its winning streak snapped at seven games as Bob Bailey's tie-breaking, two-run homer in the seventh lifted the Montreal Expos over the Mets 8-5.

St. Louis shaded Chicago 1-0 behind Rick Wise to move into third place, three game off the pace.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver, whose teams have won four American League East Division titles in the last five years, had his contract renewed Wednesday through next season.

Two other managers also got good news Wednesday. The Montreal Expos extended Gene Mauch's contract through 1975 and the California Angels rehired Bobby Winkles for next season.

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — A field of 147 golfers tees off Thursday in the $100,000 Quad Cities Open at the Crow Valley Golf Club. Most of the game's big names are not competing which leaves Hale Irwin as the man to beat.

First prize in the $100,000 tournament is $20,000.

Aaron's season nears end

ATLANTA (AP) — "If I don't hit one tomorrow (Thursday), you guys can go home," Hank Aaron tells a throng of writers tracking his chase of Babe Ruth's all-time home run record.

Aaron, still two homers shy of the immortal Ruth's 714 total, said his chances "look a little dim right now. It all depends on what happens in the next ball game."

The 39-year-old Atlanta Braves' star has only three games remaining this season, against the Los Angeles Dodgers tonight and against the Houston Astros Saturday night and Sunday.

Writers from two dozen cities, Japan and Mexico arrived in Atlanta for the start of a three-game series against the Dodgers, who swept the first two games 5-1 and 9-8 as Aaron failed to homer.

"I saw enough good pitches I should have hit tonight," Aaron said following Wednesday night's game, played in intermittent misty rain and delayed at the start for 57 minutes.

"I like to play nine innings and get the hell out," he said. "It was miserable out there. Besides, the Dodgers have been beating us at will.

"I wasn't concerned about not hitting a home run, but I thought we should have won the game," he added.

Aaron gets to face one of his leading home run victims tonight, Dodger left-hander Claude Osteen, who has yielded 13, only four less than all-time leader Don Drysdale, a former Dodger.

However, it was two years ago Wednesday that Aaron last connected for a home run off Osteen.

"The last couple of years I haven't fared too well off of him," said Aaron. "For some reason, he's been tough on me."

Osteen also is aware of the time lag. "You said it, I didn't," he said. "That's the kiss of death."

Despite failing to hit a homer, Aaron drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single. The sacrifice fly in the first inning was caught about three feet in front of the fence.

He also lined out to left, popped to shortstop, walked and fouled to first base.

Managers sign up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Montreal Expos have had only one manager since joining the National League in 1969 and they have no plans to make a change.

The Expos expressed confidence in 46-year-old Gene Mauch Wednesday, extending his contract through 1975. Mauch has 13½ years of managerial experience—some 2,132 games—and that puts him third among active managers in length of service behind Los Angeles' Walter Alston and Houston's Leo Durocher.

"He's just the guy to entrust our players to, to bring them around to championship caliber," said General Manager Jim Fanning.

Montreal has finished sixth twice and fifth twice under Mauch. This year the Expos are under .500 but are one of five clubs battling for the East Division title.

A pair of American League managers also got good news Wednesday.

The Baltimore Orioles rehired Earl Weaver for another year at an estimated $70,000. Weaver has led the Birds to their fourth East Division championship in the last five years after a rocky start.

The California Angels decided to keep Bobby Winkles on for another year. Winkles, in his first year as manager, has the Angels in fourth place in the American League West.

Winkles was a coach with the club in 1972 after several years as baseball coach at Arizona State.

San Diego skipper Don Zimmer hasn't heard anything from the Padres but he's expecting the worse.

"As for now, I'm looking for a job," said Zimmer prior to Wednesday night's game. "I have heard nothing from this organization about being fired, but I want to remain in baseball."

San Diego is last in the National League West with a 59-100 record.

Durocher's position is also less than secure in Houston and the Astro brass may make a decision this week. General Mananger Spec Richardson plans to meet with each of the coaches privately before making a decision.

The Astros, rated pennant contenders early in the season, have slumped into fourth place in the West. Coach Preston Gomez is considered most likely to succeed Durocher if the 67-year-old manager gets fired

EDMYNTON, Alb. (AP) — The World Hockey Association Alberta Oilers have shipped seven veterans, including defenseman Bob Falkenberg, to their Winston - Salem farm team in the new Southern Hockey League.

Also sent to the minors were Ron Anderson, Dennis Kassian, Brian Carlin, Bernie Blanchette and Bob McAneeley. All played with the Oilers last season.

Veteran Len Lunde, a 37 year - old veteran attempting a comeback after two years out of hockey, was also sent to Winston - Salem.

Chamberlain jumps to ABA

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, who changed the National Basketball Association rule book and rewrote the record book in 14 turbulent years, has jolted the NBA again by jumping to the rival American Baksetball Association.

The 7-foot-1 center quit the Los Angeles Lakers Wednesday and signed a three-year contract as player-coach of the San Diego Conquistadors for a reported $600,000 a year.

The Lakers promptly challenged his status as a player and threatened legal action. But in uniform or out, Chamberlain, 37, is the biggest catch for the upstart ABA in its war with the established NBA.

"I've been assured of a good, very long future in San Diego," Chamberlain told a news conference. "This job should be the biggest challenge of my life, and I hope to help San Diego become the world's best basketball team."

Club owner Leonard Bloom said the ABA will repay part of Chamberlain's salary by forgiving some future debts.

Wilt's major accomplishments since joining the old Philadelphia Warriors in 1959 include career records in points and rebounds, plus two more marks that appear unapproachable a 50.4-point average and a 100-point game, both in the 1961-62 season.

To move him away from the basket, the NBA widened its free-throw lane from 12 to 16 feet.

He has also gone through eight coaches in 14 years and acquired the reputation of a player who had his own ideas about schedules and practices.

"I practice as much with my team as any other player," Chamberlain insisted Wednesday. "In five years with the Lakers I missed practice less than Jerry West."

But Wilt was admittedly uneasy about his new role. "I've always had an apprehension with coaching," he said.

"I hope my alleged run-ins with coaches will help me avoid some of the pitfalls One thing I don't like is coaches who talk about 'handling' players. My thinking is, you don't try to handle basketball players. You handle horses and animals."

Chamberlain was more confident about his future on the court. "I feel perfectly able to play another 10 years if my mind and body hold out," he said.

But Lakers General Manager Pete Newell said Wilt's ABA playing career will have to wait a year.

"We hope Wilt will have every success as coach in San Diego," he said. "As for his status as a player ... Chamberlain has a binding contract with the Lakers for the 1973-74 season and the Lakers will take all necessary steps to prevent him from playing with any club other than the Lakers."

Chamberlain joins a oneyearold team that finished fourth in the ABA West last season under K.C. Jones, now coach of the Capital Bullets.

Meat industry leaders predict price stabilization

CHICAGO (AP) — Although meat industry officials predict meat prices will fall substantially in the next few weeks, they say consumers should realize that low prices of past years are gone.

Industry leaders, attending the annual meeting of the American Meat Institute, said consumer awareness is one factor that will determine the supply and cost of meat in the future.

Organized consumer boycotts of meat this year brought about "the purely political response" of price controls on meat, said Jess Harvat, vice president of Swift Fresh Meats Co.

He said the government controls caused farmers to withhold cattle from the market, creating "a beef shortage when no shortage existed" and causing "reasonably stable price levels" to skyrocket.

In addition, incoming institute President Richard E. Lyng said the boycotts and price controls had endangered future supplies of meat.

"Producers who normally would have been expanding production either stood still or cut back," Lyng said. "It takes a year from the time a farmer decides to produce a hog to the time it's ready for market. It takes three years for cattle.

"But this summer we saw farmers slaughtering pregnant sows and drowning chicks because they were afraid they were going to lose money."

Lyng said that, for the time being, a temporary surplus of meat will cause a sharp decline in retail prices of all meats.

Harvat said that, when that surplus is gone, prices will stabilize at a slightly higher level. But he said they still will be considerably below the peak summer prices consumers paid for meat.

Meat institute President Clifford B. Cox said the basic concern in the industry is to "provide the incentives for the farmers to produce both the grain" and the livestock necessary to feed the country.

The meat industry leaders agreed that to do that inevitably will mean higher costs for everyone. Harvat said the cost of putting one pound on a steer today is double the cost of two years ago.

Farmers spend more, so the consumer has to pay more, Lyng said.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz spoke to the industry leaders Monday night. In a news conference before his speech, he said federal price controls had been disastrous and price ceilings on meat had been counterproductive.

Butz said the only way to bring down prices was to raise production. And he said, "In the meantime, American housewives will simply have to get used to higher prices."

Lyng, who was assistant agriculture secretary in the first Nixon administration, said government controls were counterproductive in terms of expanding meat supplies.

Some folk who grow green at the thought of eating snails will pay $4.75 for a plate of escargots.

Cluck accused in murder

Jerry Cluck, 25, of Dexter, charged with murder in the death of 16- year- old Linda Sue Adams Coulson of Malden whose body was found Monday on a ditch bank near Parma, is escorted to Magistrate Court Wednesday for arraignment by New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Bo Wingo. Cluck was placed under $50,000 bond when he requested a preliminary hearing which was set for Oct. 10.

MU talks with Friedheim

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — University of Missouri officials have talked informally with Jerry Friedheim, assistant U.S. secretary of defense, about becoming managing editor of the Columbia Missourian.

Roy Fisher, dean of the journalism school, said Tuesday discussions had been held with Friedheim but stressed MU has not started actively looking for a new managing editor for the daily newspaper published by the school.

Radio station KFRU quoted Friedheim, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the journalism school, as saying he is interested but has not received a firm job offer.

Nixon undefeated in veto fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon remains undefeated in seven veto fights with Congress after the Senate sustained by five votes his veto of a bill liberalizing disaster loans.

The vote Tuesday was 59 to 36, which was short of the two-thirds majority required to override a veto.

Of his six previous vetoes, the House had upheld him on five and the Senate on one.

In Tuesday's test, 49 Democratic senators and 10 Republicans voted against the President, but 31 Republicans and five Democrats supported him.

The bill would have given disaster loan recipients a choice of a $2,500 forgiveness feature with a three per cent interest rate or a one per cent loan with no forgiveness. The forgiveness provision meant that the borrower did not have to repay that portion of the loan.

The present law calls for five per cent interest and no forgiveness.

The bill also would have made erosion victims eligible for disaster loans for the first time, expanded the authority to grant loans to small companies damaged by military base closings,

Jones draws year for non-support

BENTON — Charles Dee Jones of East Prairie was sentenced to one year in the county jail after being found guilty of non-support in a trial Wednesday before Magistrate Court Judge Lloyd Briggs.

Jones had denied fathering the child, but a witness said he earlier admitted the child was his.

Trial was set for Oct. 31 for Orley Jackson of Illmo on charges of stealing two bridge timbers from the Illmo bridge district. Charges of resisting arrest were dismissed after the preliminary hearing.

Robert Scott of Chaffee was sentenced to one year in the county jail on charges of resisting arrest.

Jim Ingram was bound over to appear in Circuit Court on Oct. 20 on charges of incest. A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 17 on rape charges against Mark L. Fisher, 1 Hauoli Drive, Scott City.

Trial was set for Oct. 9 on possession of marijuana charges against James Edward Helmes, 1331 W. Murray Lane, Sikeston.

Conrad Loehr was placed on two years probation on charges of stealing less than $50. Donald Ponder was placed on one year parole on bogus check charges on the condition that he refrain from using a checking account.

Warrants were issued for the arrest of Russell Laminack of Morehouse for failing to appear on charges of driving without a license, Earl Greer Roberts of Dexter Route One for failing to appear on charges of driving beyond 25 miles on a local license, Charles Franklin Wallace of East Prairie Route One failing to appear on charges of having defective brakes, and James Eugene Drake of Car[illegible]u, for failing to appear on charges of having an inadequate muffler.

Charges were dismissed against Paul Samuel Tolbert, 422 William, Sikeston, accused of improper use of dealer plates.

William J. Kafka of Cape Girardeau, charged with non-support, appeared and imposition of sentence was deferred until March 14, 1974.

John Henry Carter of Cape Girardeau fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail on Aug. 29 for driving without a driver's license, had $90 of the fine stayed and the jail sentence deferred.

William Walker of Cape Girardeau, charged with driving while intoxicated and driving without a driver's license was fined $125 and 100 respectively. Imposition of sentence was deferred until Oct. 24. Eddie Issac Corning of Matthews, charged with no driver's license, was fined $200 and given 60 days in jail, sentence was deferred until Oct. 31.

Other cases included: Allen G. Cox, 109 School, Chaffee, operating a motorcycle without wearing a safety helmet, $5; Betty Faye Hardin, 225 Patroleum, Sikeston, permitting an underage operator to drive, $5; James Leroy Nabors, 321 Westgate, Sikeston, careless and imprudent driving, $5; Marvin Ray Sellers, 601 Carroll, Sikeston, using an out of state license, $5; and James Edward Glastetter, Benton Route One, speeding $20.

Gary Michael Burford of Charleston Route two, speeding $10; Ernest Theron Collins, 302 Lions, defective brakes, $25; Janet Ruth Dixon, 1620 E. Matthews, Sikeston, illegal use of dealer's plates, $10; Richard Lee Essner, of Benton Route one, careless and imprudent driving, $18; Dallas Lee Grubb, of Illmo Route One, failure to display certificate of inspection, $10; Hershel Jacob Hager of Poplar Bluff, beyond 25 miles on local license $100, no cover on truck load, $100; Steven Allen Minner of Benton Route One, speeding $10.

Vicki Ann Rorex of Charleston, not wearing glasses while driving, $5; Lester Leon Gramlisch of Chaffee Route Two, permitting an unauthorized driver to drive, $5; William James of Cape Girardeau, overweight truck, $145;

Linda Kay Martinez, 705 S. West, Sikeston, no drivers license, $[illegible]; Richard Lynn Eggimann of Cape Girardeau, careless and imprudent driving, trial set for Oct. 10; Ralph Rhodes and Rocky Schultz of Chaffee, trespassing, $25 each.

4 youths to be charged with Charleston break-in

CHARLESTON — Four Charleston youths, one a juvenile, were arrested early Wednesday morning and will be charged today with breaking, entering and stealing in connection with a break- in at Cecil's Tobacco Store on North Locust Street, according to Juvenile Officer Gordon Galemore.

Anthony Peterson, 17, was apprehended on the roof of the building about 1:22 a.m. Wednesday after officers were alerted that a break- in was in progress. Peterson implicated the other youths, Gary Easton, 18, Carl Cassell, 17, and the juvenile.

A metal pipe and claw hammer were used to chop a hole in the roof to gain entry. A carton of cigarettes, four bottles of wine and three bottles of vodka were taken.

Arresting officers included Deputy Sheriff Robert Smith, Sgt. Kirk Durbin and patrolmen Willis Cox and Ben Stampley of the Charleston police force and Galemore.

Senior citizens plan activities

BENTON — The success of a nine- day tour to the nation's capital has prompted the North Scott County Senior Citizens to plan another shorter trip to Arcola, Ill., on Oct. 10. The group will also attend an ice follies show Oct. 21 in St. Louis.

Forty- seven men and women took part in the tour that included stops in Washington, D.C., New York City and Niagara Falls.

While in Washington, the group met with 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Cape Girardeau, and Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Missouri.

Other highlights of the trip included a visit to West Point Military Academy; the United Nations in New York and the Vanderbilt mansion in Hyde Park, N. Y.

Coordinator for the trip was Mrs. Mary Bain, who is employed by the DAEOC Office in Scott City. Anyone interested in the two upcoming trips should contact her.

Dexter hires 2 new police

DEXTER — Two new policeman and a new police dispatcher have been hired by acting chief of police Sanders Walpole.

The two new policemen will begin their official duties as soon as uniforms and equipment for them can be secured, Walpole said.

The two new policemen are Kenneth Tippen, 25, of Dexter who has had previous police experience; and Harold Guy Lancaster, 42, also of Dexter, who has had experience as a humane officer, Walpole said.

At the same time, Walpole announced that he had hired E. S. (Mannie) Kastner, well-known Dexter man, as police dispatcher.

The two policeman and dispatcher are part of the replacements for the four policemen and one police dispatcher who quit last week.

Walpole also said that he had other applicants for the vacancies and that their applications and background were being checked before a decision is made.

Walpole said that the city had "requested" that the four policemen who quit last week turn in their uniforms and equipment, which, he said, is city property. So far these efforts have been futile, Walpole said.

Boy hit by car

A 13- year- old boy was reportedly hit by a car and injured at 4:45 p.m. near the Dunn Hotel.

Allen Turpin, the son of Dorothy Turpin, 418 Matthews Ave., was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for a cut on the right thigh and released.

No police report was made.

INSPIRATION for the classic landscapes of generations of Chinese artists, the 2,000-year-old city of Kweilin is again drawing tourists from abroad as well as from throughout China itself. The Likang River, for a 50-mile stretch south of Kweilin, flows through some of the most dramatic mountain scenery in the world.

FBI reports violent crime rate increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent crimes increased and property crimes decreased during the first half of this year, the FBI has reported.

The violent crime rate climbed 4 per cent over the same period last year, said the agency's six-month report of uniform crime statistics released Wednesday.

The FBI said this rise included a 9 per cent increase in the murder rate and increases of smaller percentages for rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Murder was up by 17 per cent in rural areas and 8 per cent in metropolitan areas, with the exception of cities of more than a million people, where murder was up 12 per cent.

Crimes against property, including auto theft, burglary and larceny, were down 2 per cent nationwide, said the FBI.

Since there are substantially more property crimes committed than violent crimes, the 2 per cent decrease in property crimes offset the 4 per cent increase in violent crimes, yielding a total, nationwide decrease in the crime rate of 1 per cent, the agency said.

Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson said that despite the increase in violent crime, "I am encouraged to see that the statistics continue to show a levelling-off of the great increase in crime that occurred during the 1960s."

Richardson has criticized the FBI crime reporting system as an inaccurate and incomplete measurement. The statistics are based on figures submitted by more than 5,000 state and local police agencies and are only as accurate, critics contend, as the reporting methods of the police agencies involved.

Resignation not from criticism

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dr. George Ulett has denied that his recent resignation as director of the University of Missouri's Institute of Psychiatry came because of criticism of drug experimentation practices at St. Louis State Hospital.

"I've been thinking about resigning for more than a year," Ulett said Wednesday.

Ulett, who founded the institute in 1962 when he was state mental health director, said he decided to resign because his current research has moved out of the field of psychiatry into general medicine and because he had become bogged down in administrative work.

"When the MIP budget was cut by 25 per cent and we had to cut about 50 employes," Ulett said, "that just increased the administrative problem."

The institute was founded as the research arm of the state mental health department, but in 1965 it became a division of the University of Missouri School of Medicine with a contract with the state agency to train doctors.

The drug experimentation issue at MIP, which is located on the grounds of the St. Louis State Hospital, came to light last month when a series of letters were turned over to Dr. Harold Robb, director of the state mental health department.

The letters, submitted by Frederick M. Rock and Joel Phillips of the Church of Scientology in St. Louis, were purported to show that testing pools were promised to major drug companies which donated money to the institute.

Rock told Robb that it appeared that state consent rules were not followed in using the drugs on patients experimentally. Reporters examining the letter, however, could find no evidence that consent rules were not followed.

Robb said about 100 patients were involved in the testing program last spring at MIP, St. Louis State Hospital and the Farmington State Hospital. He said all testing programs have since been stopped until new consent procedures could be implemented.

Dr. William D. Mayer, the dean of the University of Missouri medical school, said Ulett's resignation is effective Oct. 31. He said Ulett will be on leave from Oct. 1 to Oct. 31.

Dr. Mayer said Dr. Turan Itil, Ulett's chief research assistant also resigned his post effective the same date.

Frost an angel food cake with slightly sweetened whipped cream; sprinkle the frosting with crushed butter toffee. The cake may be made from a mix or store-bought. Easy dessert and lovely for company.

Station closings prompt locking gas cap demand

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Locking gas caps are selling like hotcakes because of the closing of some service stations in the St. Louis area.

"I've sold more today than I did all last month," said one auto parts store operator. He said he sold 35 of the devices during his first hour of business.

"All the popular brands are sold out," said another store owner. He said 13 were sold during a 55-minute period. Another said locking gas caps were the only items he had sold today.

About 800 members of the Service Station Dealers Association of Missouri voted to close their stations for six days to protest Phase 4 gasoline price controls. The boycott is to last until midnight Tuesday.

A spokesman for one St. Louis cab company said business was normal. Most of the city's taxi firms maintain their own gasoline supplies.

The cab company official said his office had received inquiries about the availablity of cabs. He said he expected business to pickup as the shutdown continued.

Governors Conference ends

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Southern Governors Conference has ended its annual meeting after electing by acclamation its first black chairman.

Gov. Melvin H. Evans of the Virgin Islands, who will succeed Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, told the chief executives on Wednesday: "To say I am honored is the gross understatement of the year."

A spokesman for the Council of State Governments said Evans is the first black to hold such office in any major governors' conference in the nation.

Also on Wednesday, the four-day Western Governors Conference came to a close in Gleneden Beach, Ore., with the first result of its attempts to head off an energy crisis in hand.

Oregon Gov. Tom McCall announced that Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton had approved modifications that would boost the power in two turbines to be installed in the Grand Coulee Dam on the upper Columbia River.

The modifications would increase the dam's output by 70 million kilowatts for the powershort Pacific Northwest, McCall said.

Morton was a luncheon speaker on Monday at the conference, and the governors told him then that they wanted to be included in federal government planning on the energy situation.

The Southern governors passed a resolution requesting that the states be permitted to participate with the federal government in the development of a national program to minimize losses from the energy crisis.

When the Western conference opened, Gov. McCall ordered all outdoor commercial display lighting turned off in Oregon to conserve electricity. He said that state police reported 90 per cent compliance with the order Tuesday night in the populous Willamette Valley.

Other Northwest states have asked for voluntary cutbacks, and the Washington Legislature has given Gov. Dan. J. Evans the power to require reductions.

Before adjourning, the governors elected New Mexico Gov. Bruce King, a Democrat, as chairman of next year's conference, succeeding McCall, a Republican. Arizona Gov. Jack Williams was named vice chairman.

The Southern governors elected Florida Gov. Reubin Askew as vice chairman, placing him in line to advance to the chairmanship at the 1974 session.

Staffing completed at Center

KENNETT — Recruitment and employment of the staff at Southeast Missouri Community Mental Health Center has been completed, Dale Christian, director, said Wednesday upon announcing three new staff members for the three- county center.

The center's new staff includes Thomas Stafford, who has been named community coordinator. A native of Dexter, he received a degree at Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, Ark., a master's degree at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and later served one year as a chaplain-intern in clinical pastoral education.

He has served as a minister at churches in Arkansas, Kentucky and Georgia and worked as a clinical chaplain at mental hospitals in Kentucky and Georgia. Stafford and his wife Cathy now live in Kennett.

Mrs. Jane Schot has been named activity therapist at the center. She received a bachelor's degree at the University of Missouri-Columbia and is now a candidate for a master's degree in recreational therapy-outdoor recreation at the university.

Her previous experience includes work in Oakland, Calif., and at the Woodhaven Home for Exceptional Children in Columbia, as well as extensive work with the retarded and physically handicapped near Columbia.

Mrs. Schot and her husband live near Clarkton.

Miss Dianna Cleek has been named a psychiatric social worker at the center. She served for 15 months as a caseworker for the Illinois Department of Public Aid and 18 months as a caseworker for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society at Alton, Ill.

A native of Farmer City, Ill., she received her bachelor's degree at Illinois Wesleyan and a master's degree in social work at University of Illinois in Champaign.

Miss Cleek is now living in Kennett.

THEY'RE LOSING OUT

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — The Izmir Zoo is undergoing a population implosion and officials blame pollution in the industrialized Gulf of Izmr, once one of Turkey's best-loved beauty spots.

Birds and animals fed on fish caught in the gulf are definitely producing less young than they should, veterinary officer Rahmi Tokoz said, "while it is a fact that birds and animals fed on meat are not affected."

Court offers money to buy ambulances

DEXTER — Dexter Mayor Willis Conner received a letter from the Stoddard County Court Wednesday indicating that the court will assist in the purchase of ambulances, so long as they are purchased by each political subdivision in Stoddard Coun'y and Dexter Memorial Hospi'.

The text c the letter follows:

"We will contribute $1,000 toward the purchase of each ambulance, when purchased by each political subdivision in Stoddard County, and to the Dexter Hospital.

We would expect each to operate according to Senate Bill 57, and to cooperate with all the other communities as far as back-up service and services to your trade area." (Signed) Harold Snider, Jack Ward, Elmer Garner.

There has been growing concern in Stoddard County and in Missouri as a whole since the passage of Senate Bill 57, a law which regulates the use of ambulance service in the state. It will mean the establishment of service on a voluntary basis in each community, a plan much favored by Mayor Willis Conner.

The mayor said, "When I needed emergency treatment while visiting my daughter in Millbrook, N.Y., an ambulance arrived at the doorstep within five minutes, after a call was placed through the fire department. And the ambulance service in New York is set up very similar to the new law in Missouri, on a strictly volunteer basis. To me, it's a very much more efficient set-up then the one we had."

Building plan okayed

DEXTER-- The city has negotiated a contract for the construction of a "new" One Mile Road in the Dexter Memorial Hospital area.

The negotiations were concluded Tuesday night between the city, Keener Gravel Co. and Delta Asphalt Co.

The city received no bids for the road work when it asked for bids recently. This fact required that the contract be negotiated, Mayor Willis Conner said.

Under the terms of the new contract the city will lease some of its road equipment to Keener Gravel Co. to handle the earth- moving work on the new roadway, and Delta Asphalt Co., will construct the street. It will be done under the supervision of Terry Howes, engineer for C. R. Trotter and Associates.

The road has been in serious condition for several months while gravel was being hauled to the new Arvin factory site here. It was pointed out that the original street, stretching from Highway 114 to Highway 60, was poured hurriedly several years ago to have it ready for the dedication of the hospital at the time when Vice President Hubert Humphrey was to appear.

"The street was not built properly then because of the time factor," city officials said.

This time it will be constructed under engineering specifications.

Work is expected to start in the next few days.

2 juveniles in custody

HOWARDVILLE — Two juvenile boys suspected of a break- in between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Wednesday at the Cream Can Drive- In on Highway 61 are in custody of New Madrid County Juvenile Officer J. J. Bloomfield Jr.

New Madrid County sheriff's department and the highway patrol recovered 13 packages of cigarettes and $17.05 stolen from a cigarette machine and jukebox.

Entry was made by removing hinges from a door.

Miss Malden contest set

MALDEN— The annual Miss Malden contest will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13 in the high school gymnasium. The event will be sponsored by the Malden Jaycee Wives, with Mrs. Tommy Boyd as chairman of the pageant.

Miss Joanie Gulledge, Miss Malden of 1972, will crown the 1973 winner.

Contestants vying for the 1973 title are: Sherry Johnson, Judy Andrews, Beth Ashby, Cheryl Bibbs, Margaret Blake, Mary Byrum, Nancy Demaree, Debi Dennis, Shelia Dye, Joanie Hill, Beverly Kennedy, Mary Lanier, Renee Lively, Julie Lupkey, Sandy Newton, Lisa Douglas, Cindy Pearman, Gisele Robertson, Shelby Robertson, Janet Spencer, Deanna Strait, Angelia Taylor, Rita Jo Waldrup, Melinda White and Jonalene Willard.

The Tokyo subway 'service of Japanese National Railways carries 6,129,000 passengers daily. Professional pushers are employed to squeeze passengers in before the doors can be closed. Among articles reported lost in the crush in 1970 were 419,929 umbrellas, 250,630 eyeglasses, 172,106 shoes, hats, and a wide assortment of miscellaneous items. The busiest stations are Tokyo Central, handling an average of 2600 trains daily; and Skinjuki, handling 2,200,000 passengers daily.

The businest appliance in your home is a water refiner. From every tap in your home you receive Refined Water. A push of the guest button is all you need for more Refined Water when you need it. Having a Water Refiner in your home is like having "maid service" every day because it does the cleaning for you. No more hard scrubbing to clean the tile, walls, floors, or cabinets. Your clothes do not need to presoak to look clean and fluffy soft. Dishes can air dry without dreaded water spots to ruin their appearance. Why not let a Water Refiner handle the many jobs of cleaning for you? Call

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

MARGARINE IS LOWER

Butter higher in saturates

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — The reader who thinks margarine is an unsaturated fat is quite mistaken. All solid fats are saturated. Some more, some less, and the difference between natural butter and margarine is really insignificant. Butter is a natural fat with vitamins and an incomparable flavor. Margarine is a hydrogenated fat with artificial color and flavor. Readers who have been advised against the use of saturated fats should stay with corn or safflower oil only.

Dear Reader — I'm sorry but it sounds to me like you've gotten some misinformation. Your statement might have been correct for margarine made 30 years ago. Fifty-six per cent of the fat in butter is saturated fat, 33 per cent is monounsaturated fat, and only 2.5 per cent is polyunsaturated fat.

One of the typical leading commercial margarines is only 16 per cent saturated fat, and it has 26 per cent polyunsaturated fat. This is more than 10 times as much polyunsaturated fat as butter and less than a third as much saturated fat. These are the facts of the situation, regardless of how you might feel about it. Many of the other commercial margarines are of the same relative values. These figures are from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In general, the margarines that are packaged in tubs, and tend to be soft, contain more polyunsaturated fat and less saturated fat than those that are in stick form or more solid. While solid fats tend to be saturated fats, this is not entirely true. Coconut oil is liquid, and it's 86 per cent saturated fat, a much higher percentage than you would find in butter, lard or beef tallow.

Another difference between most commercial margarines manufactured today, and butter, is the cholesterol content. Margarines made of vegetable fats contain no cholesterol, since vegetables don't contain cholesterol. Butter, however, does — about 250 milligrams in 100 grams (3 and one-half ounces). One stick or quarter pound of butter then contains about the same amount of cholesterol that you'll find in one egg yolk. Because of the tendency to fortify milk, butter and margarine contain approximately the same amounts of vitamins.

Having straightened out the facts, let me say that I would agree with the idea that, where possible, individuals would be better off using corn oil or safflower oil if they want to decrease the saturated fat intake in their diet. For cooking purposes you can use these, and if you want a buttery flavor you can add artificial butter flavoring or butter salt where they can be used.

In the interest of improving the ratio of polyunsaturated fat to saturated fat in commercial margarine, you can use a trick I've found satisfactory. Use two tubs of margarine with one tub of safflower oil. Whip them well in a mixer, and of course you'll have a softer mix when you're through. Store it in the refrigerator. If you like it harder, store it in the freezing compartment. It is still spreadable, but a great deal softer, which some people may like. Dilution of the margarine with one-third safflower oil greatly improves the ratio, since safflower oil is only eight per cent saturated fat and is 72 per cent polyunsaturated fat.

Medical services survey launched

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has launched a study of medical services for the military, prompting Defense Department fears that military doctors may be replaced by civilians.

Pentagon officials said they are also concerned that some 4.5 million military dependents and retirees who now receive almost free medical care may have to turn to the civilian community and pay full price for their treatment.

The study was ordered in July by Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, and a copy of his memo outlining what the study should contain has been obtained by The Associated Press.

"The military medical care system traditionally has used military personnel and the facilities to care for servicemen and their dependents," Ash wrote, adding that free or nominally priced care of all kinds has come to be expected by the families of all 2.2 million members of the military services.

"Three factors—the all-volunteer force, the recent emphasis on improved management and the administration's commitment to an equitable health system for all Americans—suggests that these traditional assumptions should be re-examined," Ash said.

Ash set up a steering committee to study the military health apparatus which spends $2.4 billion annually on medical care.

In creating the steering committee, Ash said President Nixon "is concerned with reducing Department of Defense overhead and support costs while maintaining our overall force structure and military capability."

There is a shortage of military doctors which is expected to become critical over the next few years in the absence of the military draft.

"Civilianizing military medical services also has been proposed to offset the military doctor shortage," Ash said in his memo, without explaining how medical care would be provided in a wartime or other emergency situation.

Among the other alternatives proposed are:

—Cutting off dependents and retirees from the military health care system.

—Requiring military men and their families to pay for specialized services like eye care, dental or psychiatric treatment and some prescription drugs.

—Eliminate some services altogether.

—Make direct cash payments and allow servicemen and their families to seek out medical care on their own.

—Or adopt a medical insurance program run by the Pentagon, but similar to Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

St. Louis facilities first priority

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Board of Training Schools has set the acquisition of juvenile facilities in St. Louis as its first priority in a plan to phase out the board's three training schools in favor of nine smaller regional facilities.

In a meeting at the Training School for Girls in Chillicothe during the weekend, the board reiterated its plans for the St. Louis area, calling for establishment of four 40-bed units in the metropolitan area.

One of the four should be for maximum security, said Frederick O. McDaniel, acting director of the board.

Acquisition of three juvenile facilities in Kansas City (McCune Home for Boys and Highview and Hilltop homes) was listed as a second priority, along with facilities in southeastern, southwestern and midMissouri.

McDaniel said today the board will try to secure existing facilities through the help of the state Division of Design and Construction, and will build new facilities only if there are no existing ones available.

The commercial department of the Sikeston High School is evidently doing good work, as during the past few days three of its graduates of last summer have taken good positions. One of these graduates is Everett Hargrave, who is now secretary to the superintendent of the Louisians Division of the Missouri Pacific Railroad with headquarters at Monroe, La. His salary is $150 per month. Misses Ella and Della Harper have also taken good positions here in Sikeston during the past few days, the former at the Bank of Sikeston and the latter in the office of the Scott County Milling Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hunter will leave in a few days for Litchfield, Ky., where they will reside.

Buddy Matthews left last week for Alton, Ill., where he will be a student in the Western Military Academy again this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Burgess of Pittsburg, Kas., arrived in Sikeston last week to make their home. Mr. Burgess has accepted a position as bookkeeper for E. C. Robinson Lumber Co.

Funeral services were held in San Antonio, Tex., Friday for Ed F. Minter, former Sikeston resident, who died in a San Antonio hospital Thursday. The deceased was the first chief engineer of the municipal light plant. He suffered an attack of flu sometime in May and he was never well again.

Barnett Bros. Big Three Ring Circus and Menageries with its host of funny clowns, many cages of rare and wild animals, and an array of men and women who daily laugh at death in their exploits to thrill and amuse, will exhibit in Sikeston next Wednesday.

There is a great difference in the ages of the editor who is now past 70, and Charles, Robbie and Jack Mitchell, aged 8, 6, and 4. But just the same there is a good feeling existing between us. These Mitchell boys presented the editor with a mighty good cake, baked by their mother, for our birthday.

Two long runs were the features of the Bulldogs 26 to 0 victory over the East Prairie Eagles on the local field Friday. Two minutes after the opening whistle Lankford, at center for Sikeston, recovered a fumbled punt and crossed the goal line for the first score of the game. In the final quarter Donnell ran 49 yards to place the ball in scoring position and a few minutes before the final whistle V. Jones carried the ball 55 yards for another touchdown.

THE LIFE AND WORK OF WILHELM REICH
by Michel Cattier

The social theories and personal biography of Wilhelm Reich are explored in Michel Cattier's THE LIFE AND WORK OF WILHELM REICH, a Discus book published by Avon. A disciple of Freud who broke with the master, a Marxist who was censured by the Communist party, Wilhelm Reich was a brilliant social theorist far ahead of his time who died in an American prison a defeated man. Today, Reich's theories on sexuality, personality, and social reform have gained new recognition in the academic community and Reich is considered one of the most controversial figures of the twentieth century.

In this lucid and non-technical study, Michel Cattier explains Reich's theories on the relationship between sexuality and neurosis, the nature of orgasm and its consequences, character analysis, the effects of the family, mass repression, and spontaneity.

Michel Cattier is a Belgium Scholar who has studied Reich's work extensively.

House approves school funding formula

WASHINGTON (AP)— The House has approved a new school- funding formula that would pump more money into urban areas and reduce federal school aid to most southeastern states.

The new plan, passed Tuesday by a 285 to 94 vote, would increase funds for 31 states and decrease them for 19. The big gainers would be New York, up $74.3 million, and California, up $45.2 million.

Every northern industrial state would receive a substantial increase under the new formula while, in the South.

River commission holds hearing

CAIRO, Ill. — The problem of seep water during the 1973 spring flood was the major concern of persons appearing before the Mississippi River commission during the group's annual low- water inspection tour public hearing Monday morning in Cairo.

Gen. Charles C. Noble, president of the commission, said following adjournment of the hearing that the answer to the problem would be additional pumps.

However he said that economic feasibility continues to play a large role in obtaining appropriations to fund the purchase and installation of these pumps in various inland locations throughout the Mississippi River valley.

"Unfortunately it takes a flood to give us the data which we need" to determine priorities for the additional appropriations, Noble said.

About 40 persons attended the public hearing aboard the M. V. Mississippi docked at the Eighth Street Gap.

Eleven persons from Missouri, Kentucky and Illinois made statements during the public hearing.

Almost without exception, the speakers made note of the contributions which the commission and the U.S. Corps of Engineers had made to prevent worse flooding than actually occurred.

Following an introductory welcome to the area from Cairo Mayor James B. Walder, Payton Berbling addressed the commission.

One of Berbling's concerns was the hole between the Mississippi River Bridge and the Cairo Point which without repair could "continue to dig into the bank so that the Cairo Point will be at the point of the Angelo Towhead."

Berbling also criticized the National Water Resources Board which he said has advocated placing a tax on tonnage moving on the river and a lockage tax on use of the various locks on the inland rivers.

He said these suggestions, if put into effect, would increase the cost of moving freight by water and said it would affect Cario since "Cairo harbor is one of the busiest ports in the world." He said about 100 million tons of river trade pass through Cairo.

The water resources board's suggestion that local communities participate in the cost of levee work and other river projects would, Berbling said, "strangulate any new project wherever water is concerned."

The board has also suggested that it be able to review all projects already funded by Congress and even have the power to deauthorize projects it does not feel are needed.

"Frankly what they are trying to take for their authority scares me," Berbling said.

"The Mississippi River Commission did the job it was supposed to do," Berbling told members of the commission when talking about the spring flood. "Now the engineers must deal with the problem of interior drainage."

He cited Gale as a major example of what interior drainage can do.

Maj. Frederic Winkler of Mound City asked the commission to send letters of its approval of a proposed reworking of the community's flood control plan to Washington legislators, the Environmental Protection Agency and Gov. Dan Walker.

He said that for the economic recovery of Mound City in conjunction with tourism and restoration of many historic structures, the flood control measures must be completed.

He added that the Farmer's Home Administration had informed him that until more work can be done for a central sanitary treatment facility and drainage, the FHA could not issue any further mortgages for homes to be built in Mound City.

Winkler said this would practically stymie all new housing construction in the area.

Norbert Rolwing of Charleston, Mo., asked the commission to build the bank of the Mississippi River back where it has been eroded in the Thompson Bend area. The erosion allows the river water to enter the Thompson Bend area when the river is even below flood stage now and high water in the next few months could cut off the Thompson Bend area from access to the rest of Mississippi County.

Marion Waggener, who farms the land from the Cairo point to the Interstate 57 bridge, asked the commission to investigate the possibility of rocking an additional 300 feet about one mile north of the Mississippi River bridge south of Cairo where the floodwaters have eaten into the bank and a dangerous eddy has formed at a rock jetty built about five years ago.

He also asked the commission to consider rocking an area of the river north of Hickman, Ky., where a gorge has formed about 750 feet wide and about 30 feet deep. He said that without some repair, a new island or even a new channel for the river could be formed there.

Judge Anderson Moss of Wickliffe, county judge of Ballard County, Ky., asked the commission to consider repair work on the east bank of the Mississippi between Beech Creek and the mouth of Mayfield Creek.

That portion of the bank has become eroded and is subject to slides. He cited recent economic developments in Wickliffe as justification for the work.

Others appearing at the public hearing were Harry Bok of the St. John's Drainage District in New Madrid County, Mo.; Rollin Green, city manager of Hickman, Ky.; George Lozier of the St. Francis Drainage District of Missouri; James Bogler of Levee District 3 in Missouri; David Brewer of the Big Lake Drainage District of Scott and Mississippi counties, Mo.

Quail season daily limit set

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)— Missouri quail hunters will take a cut in the amount of quail they shoot this fall.

The state Conservation Commission set a Nov. 10- Jan. 15 quail season Tuesday. The daily bag limit will be eight and the possession limit will be 16. This is a cut of two birds in the daily limit and four in the amount a hunter is allowed to have in his possession.

Over- all, the conservation department's production index, a figure arrived at through the number of breeds seen by statewide observers, is down 28 per cent.

Last year, the production index was 14 and this year it is 10.

The biggest dip in the production index came from east- central Missouri, where the quail supply is expected to be off 50 per cent from last year.

In the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's first 15 years, some 300 satellites have been sent into earth orbit and interplanetary space.
